General Google Slides Directions:

1. Please sign in with your Google account.
2. Please click "make a copy" and a copy of the lesson will automatically save to your Google Drive.
3. If you are distance learning and using Google Classroom, please assign the activity to your students.
4. If you are distance learning with another platform, you can use post the resource to the virtual learning program that you are using, or email the link directly to students. If you email the link to students, please make sure that they or their parents have a free Google account first. They will click on the link, sign in with their Google account, and then a copy of the activity will automatically be saved to their Google Drive. They can then use any device (tablet, smart phone, computer) to access the resource.
5. If you would like to teach the digital lesson in person to students, you can access it from your Google account and interact with the lesson on a smart board or tablet.

For the interactive pieces to work, please make sure that you are using "edit mode," not full-screen "presentation" mode.

How to Use the Digital Resource:

- This presentation teaches students to identify 8 feelings. I start by explaining that all in the same day we might feel happy, angry, excited, and sad – and that is normal and okay! And, even though some feelings don't feel good, like anger and sadness, they are still okay and an important part of who we are.
- In the presentation, students review 2 scenarios for each feeling word, then have the opportunity to share when they experienced that feeling. Students can respond to the prompts by typing directly in the text boxes that say "type here."
- An interactive drag-and-drop activity is included that asks students to drag a check mark to how they are feeling today. They can choose as many feelings as they'd like.
- A PowerPoint and printable resources are included in the zip folder, too! Feel free to use any of them after completing the digital activity.
