ASCA Mindsets & Behaviors:

Mindsets:

- M 2: Sense of acceptance, respect, support, and inclusion for self and others in the school environment.

Behaviors:

- B-SS 3: Positive relationships with adults to support success.
- B-SS 8: Advocacy skills for self and others and ability to assert self, when necessary.

Directions Pg. 1:

This lesson will take approximately 45 minutes to teach.

Suggested Sequence:

1. Read aloud "The Rabbit Listened" by Cori Doerrfeld (use the story or a YouTube video read aloud!)
2. Review the PowerPoint (or Google Slides) presentation.
3. Review the instructional posters (and hang them in your classroom/office as décor!)
4. Complete either the craft, hat, or coloring pages.

This lesson is a great way to introduce the role of the school counselor. I love to use it at the beginning of the school year as my very first lesson, but also use it any time I want students to understand my role better! I start the lesson by reading the book "The Rabbit Listened" by Cori Doerrfeld aloud. After reading the story, we review the PowerPoint. The PowerPoint summarizes the story then connects the rabbit in the story to the role of the school counselor. After reviewing the PowerPoint, I show students the posters to review the material. Finally, I ask students to return to their desks to complete the craft, hat, or coloring pages.

CRAFT:

A craft for younger students (with the 4 things a counselor does for them to color) and a craft for older students (with blank lines for them to write how their school counselor helps them) are included. I like to use the color version as my sample to show students and the black/white version for students so they can use crayons/markers to decorate it. To start, please give students the rabbit face paper, the "My School Counselor:" paper, scissors, markers or crayons, and a glue stick. Please ask students to cut out the rabbit face and glue it to the very top of their paper as shown in the sample image below. Next, for the younger students' version, students can color the 4 ways a school counselor can help them. For the older students' version, students can write ways that their school counselor can help them. These would make for a super cute hallway display or bulletin board!

Directions Pg. 3:

HATS:

The hats are an adorable way for students to share what they learned with their home and school communities! Students will need the hat paper, hat extenders, scissors, glue, and crayons or markers. The educator will need a stapler. Both full color and black/white versions are included. I like to use the full color version for my sample and give students the black/white version so they can decorate it. Students can start by cutting out the hat and the extenders. Then, they can decorate them with crayons or markers. Next, students can glue the extenders to each side of the hat. Once they are done, the educator can fit the hat to their head and staple the extenders together so they can wear it.

Directions Pg. 4:

Assorted coloring pages are also included that make for a great closing activity. Or, students can bring one home!

Hat extenders!

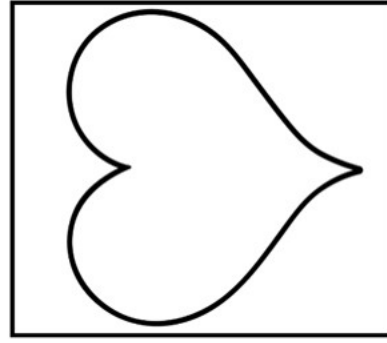

Students can glue the extenders to each side of their hat. Then, the educator can fit it around their head to size, and staple the extenders together so the student can wear it.
